Each DVD comes with an information slip about the film, how it came to be made and who made it:

About The Librarian

www.thelibrariananimation.weebly.com

The Librarian is a short stop motion animation by third year student Rebecca Pople at the Bristol school of animation.

I am primarily a model maker who views animation as an extension of my work; however for this project I wanted to challenge myself and take an idea from concept through to the final edit in all areas of design and production to make a short animated film.

For more examples of my work please visit:

An illustration of an elderly man with a white beard and glasses, wearing a dark suit and a white shirt. He is sitting in a large, high-backed, brown upholstered chair, reading a book. The scene is lit from the left, casting a long shadow of the man and the chair onto the white background.

The Librarian

*A*n old and weary Librarian who has worked in his job for a very long time has a closer connection to the library and the books within than he realises. Whilst going about his daily business, the Librarian's attention is drawn to one book in particular. He settles in his great armchair to read the story contained within its pages but falls asleep before he can finish.

In his dreams the book comes to life... but is it a dream?

*T*he Librarian is a short stop motion animation by Rebecca Peple. For more information on this project or more work from the artist follow the links below.
